

EU — CYBERSECURITY — OPEN SOURCE

EU Cyber Resilience Act antagonises, troubles open-source sector

The EU has proposed a new Cyber Resilience Act. The lack of industry dialogue has the open-source sector worry that the act will stifle development.

AZANIA IMTIAZ PATEL

September 4, 2023 . 11:11 AM — 3 min read

This post is for subscribers only

Subscribe

Already have an account? Sign In

Related

NEWS

New transatlantic data transfer agreement comes after "unprecedented" US spying commitment

ED TARGETT

July 10, 2023

CLOUD

Europe laments puny cloud presence, to crack down on foreign subsidies, boost indigenous chip capabilities.

ED TARGETT

May 6, 2021

Latest

MONGODB

MongoDB takes .local literally: Takes cloud DBaaS Atlas to the Edge, reveals new AI toolings

LEE BELL

September 27, 2023

CRYPTOCURRENCIES

Security researcher hit with a Grand Jury subpoena after feds confuse crypto crook investigation with crime

ED TARGETT

September 27, 2023

OPEN SOURCE

Maps are HOT for Petya Kangalova and that's helping in a lot of crises

AZANIA IMTIAZ PATEL

September 26, 2023

SERVERLESS

Confluent touts serverless Apache Flink, AI ambitions at "Current"

ADRIAN BRIDGWATER

September 26, 2023

The Stack

Sign up

© 2023 The Stack – Published with Ghost & Tripoli